

Artificial Intelligence refers to the ability of a computer or machine to perform tasks that typically require human intelligence. This includes capabilities like learning, reasoning, problem-solving, and decision-making. Essentially, AI aims to create systems that can mimic human.